The resolution also stated that there now existed a condition which may require the fullest and most effective use of the regular army of the United States.

Aiding Americans.
Washington, D. C., May 7.—The Brazilian minister in Mexico City informed the state department late today that he was continuing his efforts in behalf of Consul Sullivan and other Americans said to be imprisoned at Saltillo. He adds that the probability of an attack by the constitutionalists upon Saltillo has interrupted communications and so far has rendered it impossible to carry out the orders of the government for the release of these Americans.

C., Bulletin, May 7.—Word was received today by the state department that an order had been issued whereby the return of the employees to the oil works had been authorized, and the work was again resumed. Washington, May 7.—While Brig. General Punston has been authorized to extend his lines at Vera Cruz for defense purposes, it, that becomes necessary, the situation there reported today remains unchanged. Start Advance.
The van guard of the constitutional forces at Durango and Torreon has started on its march to begin a campaign for the capture of Saltillo and Zacatecas. The dispatch to the British embassy was sent in response to an inquiry about the conditions at the Cinco Minas mines, and the safety of the Americans there. It reads, "Bullion buried. Concentrated guard. Americans all safe. One American and two British killed in mines at Jalisco. All mines shut down completely." The dispatch did not mention the names of the Americans and British killed.

WHITE HOUSE BRIDE
GETS COSTLY GIFTS

Miss Eleanor Wilson's Wedding Presents Are in Many Cases of Personal Domestic Nature.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, May 7.—The wedding presents received by Miss Eleanor Wilson, daughter of the president, on her marriage today to Secretary McAdoo, besides being numerous and valuable, have the added quality of being in many instances of a personal and domestic nature, signifying the interest taken in the home life of the new cabinet couple. The bridegroom, Secretary McAdoo, in addition to the splendid string of diamonds which his bride will wear at the wedding, is also reported to have given her the opal brooch, surrounded by a ring of large diamonds, which she has worn frequently of late, and a wrist bracelet in which a watch is bordered with diamonds. The engagement ring is said to have been a large diamond solitaire and another ring from Mr. McAdoo was a set of opals surrounded by diamonds. The opal is a birthday gift for both the bride and bridegroom, as their birthday anniversaries occur in October.

President's Gift Unknown.
The gift of the president and Mrs. Wilson has not been made known, but is understood to be something similar to the gift they made the first bride of the family, a set of furniture for the bride to use in her new home. The cabinet members and their wives united in a gift to Miss Wilson and Mr. McAdoo, following a historical precedent established at the Cleveland-Poison wedding. The present was a set of silver dinner plates and a silver platter. It was sent the bride-to-be early in the week and has been a source of admiration for its massive elegance.

The vice president and Mrs. Marshall were not in this city at the Sayre-Wilson wedding, for which Mrs. Marshall spent part of her last summer's leisure in making by hand dainty things to give her bride. Her present to today's bride is also of a personal character and was sent over to the White House this morning. Several of the cabinet women have also sent the bride pieces of their handwork in linen lace and embroidery for personal and household use.

Get Expensive Jewels.
The postmaster general and Mrs. Ruskin are also represented in the collection of presents by an opal lavalliere. The center stone has small pearls around it and the ornament is on a fine gold chain, studded here and there with tiny pearls.

The senate's present was a gold bracelet studded with diamonds and it has the added importance of having been chosen from among other pieces of jewelry presented to Miss Wilson. The senate committee in charge of the gift consisted of Senators Martine of New Jersey, chairman, and Senators of Delaware, Townsend of Michigan and Overman of North Carolina. The wives of the senators made the selection.

The gift from the house of representatives was selected by a small committee, headed by Representative James R. Mann. It consists of a silver tea service, a large tray, with kettle and stand, tea pot, coffee pot, sugar bowl, creamer, sugar bowl, and a pair of silver candelabra. There were many other presents of a personal nature from the large circle of relatives and friends.

Mexican Embassy, After Trip of Misfortune, Arrives in Washington Today—Meets Secretary Bryan.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, D. C., May 7.—Nelson O'Shaughnessy, who was in charge of the American embassy at Mexico City, arrived in Washington today. He was taken to a hotel, and had a conference with Secretary Bryan later on. Misfortune followed Mr. O'Shaughnessy even to the seat of his government, he having lost most of his personal possessions when the Mexican locomotive left out of Vera Cruz. After his departure from Mexico City the American charge lost more of his personal belongings. En route from New Orleans to Washington, Mr. O'Shaughnessy's baggage could not be located where he had arrived here. Mr. O'Shaughnessy's first act, after reaching his hotel, was to hunt up a haberdasher's shop. He was then besieged by interviewers, hunted up a few old friends, dropped in at the Metropolitan club and at 10:30 went to the state department for a conference with Secretary Bryan.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy assured interviewers that papers on the embassy and his code book were still safely in his possession. As to his own future he would make no comments, although he had received no official orders regarding his continuation in the service.

When asked regarding the possibility for a compromise cabinet and a compromise president to be established in Mexico pending a settlement of the difficulties there, the American charge replied in the affirmative. Secretary Bryan greeted Mr. O'Shaughnessy cordially at his office. The two men spent only a few minutes when Mr. Bryan left and went immediately to the White House for a conference with President Wilson. Mr. O'Shaughnessy remained at the state department and called on Chancellor Lansing, assistant secretary.

Mr. Bryan announced because of the White House wedding he would probably not confer with Mr. O'Shaughnessy until tomorrow. The secretary also asserted that his future status had not been considered and thought it improbable he would see President Wilson today.

The treatment consists in placing the patient about a yard's distance in front of an ordinary arc lamp and directing the rays against the affected parts for periods of from fifteen minutes at first to two hours and a half, the length of time being gradually increased from day to day. New Wing Costing One Million Dollars at British Museum.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, May 7.—King George and Queen Mary today opened a new wing of the British Museum which has just been completed at a cost of a million dollars. It is the first part of a large scheme of extension.

In 1895 the government bought a considerable portion of the Duke of Bedford's property around the museum for $1,250,000 and a large area was cleared. The legacy of $250,000 bequeathed by Vincent Stucky Lean for the enlargement of the museum gave impetus to the present extension. The bequest was intended particularly for the extension of the reading room and library, to which the restator was a frequent visitor.

The new building is in architectural harmony with the old museum, its facade which is flanked by two massive towers, is of Portland stone, the outer walls and pedestals of the forecourt being of Scotch granite. The main entrance is surmounted by a balcony, the parapet of which is formed by a bronze stone in relief. In 1907, by the late King Edward. The doorway itself is formed of marble, surrounded with granite, and is closed by a bronze door, the upper panels of which are sculpture in relief.

The architectural composition of the building is severely simple. In the interior the object in view has been to deprive the extension of everything irrelevant to the main purpose, the primary idea being to make it a mere background for the exhibition of the nation's treasures.

An important feature of the new wing is the staircase which links between the old building and the new one. This is extremely simple in design. Its walls are covered with marble, which has been selected more for its texture than for its color, and its sculpture than for its carving.

GEN. BENJ. F. TRACY
LAUDS MEDIATION

Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy.

"The mediation proposal of the A. B. C. republics is an event of the utmost importance," recently declared Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy, veteran of the Civil war and cabinet member under President Harrison. "I consider it the most fortunate thing that has happened in the international affairs of this country for years. If it proves successful it will change entirely the attitude of the South American republics toward us."

Idyllic Home in California.
The youngest daughter of President Wilson, Miss Eleanor Randolph Wilson, will be married at six o'clock this evening to William Gibbs McAdoo, secretary of the Treasury in the Wilson cabinet. Miss Wilson will be the fourteenth bride of the White House and the first daughter of a president to be united to a cabinet officer.

The simple and impressive ceremony will be announced by the Reverend Sylvester Beach.

The Vice President, his wife and members of the cabinet, and their wives will witness the ceremony, with a few personal friends of the bride and bridegroom.

Married in Blue Room.

The ceremony will take place in the historic Blue Room. This room has been the scene of more historical functions than any other room there. In recent years the furnishings have been entirely changed. The decorations have been modernized. The color scheme is blue, not the robin's egg blue, but a darker blue. The walls are paneled with rich corded silk. The massive furniture of days gone by has been replenished with some of a newer, lighter type.

The floral decorations of the room on the first floor are marvellously beautiful, with slender vases of rare design filled with cut flowers including masses of lilies and white orchids, from the White House conservatory. The south side will be backed with palms forming a background for great bunches of spring blossoms of cherries and apples.

Sister Attends Bride.
In the main lobby of the mansion a band orchestra of fifty people under the direction of Lieutenant Wm. H. Antelman will render the musical program. To the strains of "The Wedding March" the wedding party will descend from the apartment above. The bride's sister will be matron of honor. Two charming little maids will attend the bride, and two bridesmaids will follow, being the daughters of Secretary and Mrs. Franklin Lane. They will be attired in exquisite white frocks.

The bride will be escorted into the Blue Room by her father. At the beautiful altar made for the occasion she will be joined by the bridegroom and the best man, Mr. Grayson, U. S. N., who is a particular friend of the bridegroom-to-be and also of President Wilson.

An informal reception will follow the ceremony after which the bridal party will sit down to the wedding supper prepared for them.

Bride Very Attractive.
Both of the contracting parties to the wedding have become well known during the present administration. The future Mrs. McAdoo is the brunette of the Wilson daughters, twenty-three years old, with such an expressive face that most people who have seen her are struck by her beauty. She is tall and slender, her head is well shaped, her eyes are blue and when she smiles—or better still when she laughs, which is often—she shows her full teeth. Her hair is a shade darker than her mother's, and she wears it in a coil wound round her head. She follows the modes in dress, without exaggeration.

Miss Wilson was born in Middletown, Connecticut, where her father was a professor at Wesleyan University. At fifteen she went to Raleigh, N. C., to boarding school. Later on while her sister Margaret was in school for vocal study, and another sister was engaged in social settlement work in the Kensington, Pa., mill district, the bride of today began her own studies in Philadelphia, inheriting her ability and taste in that direction from her mother.

Is Fond of Society.
Life at the capital opened up a new world to her, and the bride-to-be has enjoyed to the fullest. Most of the White House week-end guests have been former associates of the Wilson girls and have joined in their social activities here. The White House tennis court, famous during the Roosevelt regime, fitted in perfectly in the Wilson girls' home pleasure scheme. Miss Eleanor plays a good game of tennis, though equally devoted to horseback riding. She is also fond of walks, often joining the president in his jaunts, although her walking partner the past spring has been her future husband, Secretary McAdoo. She has tramped with her many afternoons after his office hours through the uptown streets and suburbs.

Bridegroom is Prominent.
The bridegroom, Secretary William G. McAdoo, was born in Marietta, Georgia, 51 years ago. He was only 21 when admitted to the bar, after his studies at the University of Tennessee. He practiced his profession in Chattanooga for eight years, then moved to New York. There he conceived the project with which his name is identified—the Hudson river tunnel system, linking New York and Jersey. Secretary McAdoo was president of the system from 1902 to 1913.

Mr. McAdoo was one of the "original Wilson men," and as vice chairman of the democratic national committee and as acting chairman during much of the 1912 campaign, the acquaintance between the two, fated to be bound together later by family ties, has had no break since that centennial. Secretary McAdoo's first wife died about two years ago. She was Sarah Houston Fleming of Chattanooga, Tennessee. Of six children, three sons and three daughters, the two oldest are married. The first, Mrs. Charles Martin, who lives in Arizona, and Francis H. McAdoo of this city. The other children are William G. McAdoo, Jr., student at Princeton; Robert McAdoo, at school at St. Paul; and a daughter, who took part in Washington social life for the past year for the first time, and Salie McAdoo, the little girl of the family.

BOB MOHA TO MEET EASTERN SCRAPPER

Milwaukee Middleweight Who Bumped Levinsky Meets Frank Mantell in Cream City Bout.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
Milwaukee, May 7.—What looks to be the best all-around boxing card that has been staged in Milwaukee this season will be offered Milwaukee and state fans by the National A. C. at the Hippodrome next Monday night.
The feature bout will be between Bob Moha, the Milwaukee middleweight, and Frank Mantell, the eastern scrapper, a veteran of the game and a boxer who has faced the best middleweights in the country.
In addition to the winnow, two other ten-round bouts will be staged between what is generally conceded to be the best talent in this section of the country.
The card will consist of ten rounds with together, Peanuts Schiebel and Freddie Centure. These two boys have been bantam after a fashion for many days. Centure as he is called, is a native of Chicago, and has been camping on Schiebel's trail, yelling for a match. This will be the opportunity he has long sought and may mean the making of him a featherweight champion in this section.
In the opening bout, which is worthy of a winnow under ordinary circumstances, Dick Leadman and Kid Rogers are classed as the best bantams in the state and this battle will be a measure show which has the best right to the title.

PITTSBURGH PUSHES GIANTS DOWN SHUTE

Minor Brown, Ex-Cub Star, Making Pennant Show With His St. Louis Federals.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)
New York, May 7.—If Mordecai Brown's St. Louis Federals happen to cop the Federal League pennant there would be another badly spilled bucket of dope to scoop up. Brezing through April the former Chicago Cub pitcher carried his club along to the top of the heap, being walloped for but one out of the first nine games and is in second place now. This is hardly more than out from under the fight shadow of the wire, but should the team hold up and continue the fight through July and August, a new line of excuses for the Browns and Cardinals may be necessary. Should Brown deliver, it will be the first pennant ever won by St. Louis.

Turning back the pages it will be found that Cincinnati, Philadelphia and St. Louis have yet to put over a winner in the National league. New York, Cleveland, Washington and St. Louis have never won a pennant in the American league. That puts it on St. Louis twice.

Pennant winners. Philadelphia has won the pennant in the American league five times; Chicago, Boston and Detroit have each copped three. Chicago is the big winner in the National league, having grabbed off ten titles. Boston has eight to its credit, New York seven, Pittsburgh four, Brooklyn three, and in the old line up Baltimore three, Providence two, and Detroit one.

It has always been more or less of a mystery why the St. Louis teams have usually been able to start the season in good shape and then die away. The Cardinals under Medusa, having grabbed off ten titles, Boston has eight to its credit, New York seven, Pittsburgh four, Brooklyn three, and in the old line up Baltimore three, Providence two, and Detroit one.

Weather Blamed. Explanations as long as the history of Babylon have been made of this annual trip down the charts taken by the St. Louis teams. The weather of St. Louis is held responsible by some dopesters. And some of the St. Louis players are said to have declared that as the thermometer climbs in their home town and the humidity humids, all pep slowly cozes away and there is nothing left but nine shells which periscope through the motions of the Cardinals are cowering at top speed and slithering the ball to all corners of the lot.

If Brown has collected an aggregation of tropical wonders for his St. Louis Federals he may count on being among the leaders when the final bell rings. If he has just ordinary human beings who do their training on the equator they will have to be a new line of dope figured for the Browns and Cardinals.

Pirates Hit Stride. It has been pretty clearly indicated that the Giants have a man sized job on hand in beating out the Pittsburgh Pirates for the National league pennant. In the first place, the Pirates have gotten into action from the start; therefore they have hesitated and stunted before striking their real battle stride. The Giants were the slow starters this year, and should Fred Clark's men hold their salt, it will be long hard chase to the finish this year which had been a bug-a-boo for years. This is at first glance.

By acquiring Koney from the St. Louis Cardinals the Pirates solved their ancient problem, for the big "train" stacks up with the best of them when it comes to first basing. Wagner is going as of old, fielding as only Wagner can field, and slaying the ball as only the famous Dutchman can slay it.

Sport Snap Shots

The Feds seem to be sinking the hoodlums into quite a few of the major and Class A minor organizations. In Baltimore the Feds are drawing way ahead of the International League and these latter have been losing in long way since the Fed invasion. In Kansas City, Stovall's team is much more popular than the A. A. team there and they are packing their stands at the A. A.'s expense. In St. Louis for Medusa's club is getting bigger crowds than both the Cardinals and Browns combined, and in Chicago Tinker's Chiefs are far outstriking the Cubs in crowds and popularity. The Cubs were once the big crowd pullers in Chicago, but they are in very bad with the Chicago fans at present and Tinker and his crew are getting the coin. In Buffalo the Fed team is doing a good fifty-fifty with the Elisons, and Pittsburgh seems to be the only Fed town where they are overshadowed by the major leagues. Which looks as if the Feds would be with us for a while yet.

Jimmy Burke, the veteran ball player, thinks that the game is getting to be a proper pastime for old ladies and cripples. "It's most ladylike compared to the game we played fifteen years or more ago," says Jimmy. "Players didn't shake hands when they met then and there was STILL TROUBLESOME.

Despite the fact that Secretary Bryan and President Wilson considered all their troubles with Mexico would be adjusted by the A. B. C. diplomats, it appears that there are many troublesome and vexatious questions yet to be solved. It is now estimated that if Huerta does agree to salute the flag for the insult to the United States at Tampico, he will demand that the Wilson administration recognize his government. This Wilson would not consent to do and consequently it means more complications. Then the senate does not seem in hearty accord with the president when it comes to recognition of the Mexican government upon him to state whom he would recognize as head of the republic should Huerta resign, though tabled, has caused more uneasiness. Meanwhile the alphabetical class in diplomacy continues to hold daily meetings and many conferences with the Guardian of the Dove of Peace, William Jennings Bryan, while down in Vera Cruz General Funston prepares for an armed conflict as fast as insufficient means will permit.

Its banks are being dotted with summer homes and summer camps yearly, launches ply back and forth, and one does not have to go miles away from home to enjoy an outing. It is right here at the doors for the asking.

The government at Washington is sending out numerous instructions to the general public on all sorts of problems, the result of careful investigations, and many of the suggestions offered are most excellent.

Interest in bird lore is increasing.
It is being taught in the schools and many of the children know more about our feathered visitors and their habits than a good many of the older generations.

Rock river is going to furnish some of the pearls that adorn "Mi Lady" in the near future if the various fisher camps south of the city are any criterion of the future.

Despite the talk of a later spring than usual the fruit trees are trying hard to make up for lost time and the birds carol just as of yore.

Chinese Reverence for Dead.
The Chinese revere the dead to such an extent that when the demise of a Chinaman occurs he is buried for three years. At the end of this time the body is dug up and the bones placed in a vase. The vase and its contents are then interred for all future time.

The Difference.
A pessimist complains he has eaten 1,000 oysters without coming on a pearl; an optimist gives thanks that he has eaten that many oysters without getting ptomaines.—New York Mail.

THE START MADE.

The initial step in a non-partisan campaign for the state election next fall, was taken in Milwaukee yesterday when gentlemen interested in the proposed Home Rule organization met and decided to hold a convention, place a state ticket in nomination and otherwise conduct a campaign in the interests of the people, the tax payers, who have been forced to pay excessive taxes to further the promulgation of the Wisconsin Idea. Charles E. Pierce of this city was elected president of the league and one of the resolutions adopted, explains the attitude of the proposed organization.

Be It Resolved, That it is the duty of every patriotic citizen, regardless of party affiliation, to unite in restoring true democracy in Wisconsin, to strenuously oppose the establishment of any more commissions, to abolish at once those commissions which experience has shown to be not only useless, but the instruments of petty tyranny, to consolidate other commissions and to limit and restrain the powers of the remaining commissions so they shall be the servants of the people and not their masters, to prevent waste and extravagance in the administration of public affairs, and to rid the people of all unnecessary offices and expenses.

Be It Further Resolved, That the enormous taxes with which our people are now burdened are the result of misgovernment and gross extravagance, and that we pledge ourselves to unite in electing representatives to the legislature regardless of party, who will bring about such a change in our present system of government and methods of taxation as will relieve our people from all unnecessary financial burdens, rid us of the offensive and unnecessary system of commissions that has been established, and bring us back to that true economy and careful administration of public affairs from which we should never have departed.

That there is need for just such a movement is most certain. The men behind it are not actuated by any desire to further their own personal political ambition, but are working for the general good of the state. That it will succeed in certain ways its aims and objects are most thoroughly understood. That it will be bitterly opposed by the present state administration is also certain, so the fight promises to be a merry one.

Lemmel Sogges, the eminent canine fancier, has bred a daschund which is the observed of all observers. It is said to be the longest daschund in the world. The daschund can walk around the barn and bite his own tail. In fact, when he is walking around the barn he can hardly get around of his own way. When Mr. Sogges pinches the dog's tail the sensation does not reach the dog's brain until the next day and he is occasionally heard to howl when there is apparently nothing happenin' to him. In other words the dog's tail could be chopped off and he wouldn't hear about it for twenty-four hours. Sogges intends to train the dog for use as a clothesline. She is trying to teach him to hang onto one post with his tail. One trouble with the dog seems to be that he drags a portion of his length. Mr. Sogges hopes to overcome this by making some supporting pillars to be bottoms of which roller skates will be attached, so that they will slide over the ground easily when the dog is in motion. These skates will be attached to the under side of the dog. It takes the dog twenty minutes to pass a fence, so that he almost is long in fact as it takes ex-President Taft to do the same, and the only way to bathe the faithful animal is to have him run back and forth under a pump.

Lemmel Sogges, the eminent canine fancier, has bred a daschund which is the observed of all observers. It is said to be the longest daschund in the world. The daschund can walk around the barn and bite his own tail. In fact, when he is walking around the barn he can hardly get around of his own way. When Mr. Sogges pinches the dog's tail the sensation does not reach the dog's brain until the next day and he is occasionally heard to howl when there is apparently nothing happenin' to him. In other words the dog's tail could be chopped off and he wouldn't hear about it for twenty-four hours. Sogges intends to train the dog for use as a clothesline. She is trying to teach him to hang onto one post with his tail. One trouble with the dog seems to be that he drags a portion of his length. Mr. Sogges hopes to overcome this by making some supporting pillars to be bottoms of which roller skates will be attached, so that they will slide over the ground easily when the dog is in motion. These skates will be attached to the under side of the dog. It takes the dog twenty minutes to pass a fence, so that he almost is long in fact as it takes ex-President Taft to do the same, and the only way to bathe the faithful animal is to have him run back and forth under a pump.

I am forlorn as I can be, The future's grim and dire; There is no joy on earth for me, I've got to buy a fire.

Pigs on Shipboard.
The killing of a pig at sea is always an occasion of much importance, not only for the reason that fresh meat is to be enjoyed—a great luxury on a sailing ship after perhaps months of salt provisions—but because what is termed a "pig breeze" or favorable wind may be looked upon as a certainty. Pigs when kept on sailing ships are often let out of their pens, and their movements, which are believed to foretell the state of the wind to be expected, are watched with keen interest.

Soldier's Most Trying Position.
The average soldier finds the most trying position to be that of standing motionless in the front rank, exposed to the enemy's fire without being able to reply. The order to advance or to charge with fixed bayonets is then received as a release from agony. Movement, even into greater peril, distracts the mind and greatly reduces the mental anguish.

GOVERNMENT NOT TO IMPROVE THE ROCK

SECRETARY OF WAR SUBMITS ADVERSE REPORT TO CONGRESS.

GARRISON VETOES PLAN

Says That There Is Not Sufficient Need to Warrant Expenditure of Money for This Purpose.

Dreams of Mississippi river steamers sailing up the Rock river to Jansville, through the talked of seven foot channel, have been given a rude awakening by the report of the secretary of war, submitted to congress, Washington dispatch, transmitted to a view to securing a seven foot channel from the dam at the new canal at near Sterling, Illinois. The improvement is held to be unwarranted by the volume of existing and prospective commerce. The division of engineers did not concur in the district engineer's report, which provided for the improvement of the river and also made an adverse report on it, which was concurred in by the chief of engineers.

Just what effect this decision will have upon the rebuilding of the structures destroyed by fire at the Rock river bridge, is uncertain. It will, however, remove one of the obstacles, although the matter is now under consideration. The talk of connecting Jansville by water with the Gulf of Mexico, and undoing the work of the Rock River Improvement association, which was instrumental in having the survey made with a hope of securing an appropriation from congress to complete the work.

MEANS-BUSY MONTH

FOR COUNTY COURT

Three Contested Wills and Inheritance Tax Fight are Listed on Calendar.

The next week or two will be busy ones in the probate court, with three will cases and a fight over the adjustment of an inheritance tax in a large estate on the calendar. The contest over the Julia Myers wills is scheduled to come up at some time during the present term, but the date has not been determined upon by the attorneys of the parties. Heirs of Caroline W. Johnson of Beloit seek to break her will by which she left an estate of some $10,000 largely to philanthropic and educational enterprises. The St. Augustine College of Rock Island, Ill., a school for prospective clergymen of the Swedish church, was the principal beneficiary. The hearing in this case is set for May 16, before Judge Field. The third will case, that of the estate of Frank Laughran of Clinton, is scheduled for May 27. In this case a brother of the deceased is the contestant against a sister who was the principal beneficiary. The hearing of the inheritance tax contest against the Sylvester Morgan estate which was begun last week will be continued on May 13.

Of fifty-five made by Judge Field at the regular May term which opened Tuesday, thirty-four have been entirely disposed of.

INSURGENT WOODMEN USE STEAM ROLLER

Rock County Delegates Among Administrative Force Who Lost Out at Fond Du Lac.

Rock county delegates to the state convention of Modern Woodmen of America held at Fond du Lac Wednesday, fell prey to the routing insurgents who controlled the convention, electing twenty-four delegates and twenty-four alternates to the head camp at Toledo, June 15th.

O. S. Morse, Jansville, David Thorne and W. H. Green, Beloit; E. C. Russell, Emerald Grove; W. R. Therpe, Milton Junction, of Rock county were in the administration ranks by instruction. The insurgents named R. E. Miller of Racine; G. W. Copeness of Whitewater, and D. W. Agnew of Waukesha, as delegates to the Toledo convention representing the first congressional district. The alternates named were E. T. Alkema, Troy, and J. C. Dunney, Union Grove. The insurgents made good on their claim that they would elect the state officers and select all the delegates to the national convention where the fate of the present head officers will be decided. Besides twenty-eight delegates the insurgents were elected step farther and elected twenty-four alternates, making a delegation of forty-eight to fight against the increase in rates.

Charles B. Perry of Milwaukee was elected state counsel and J. H. Andrews clerk.

Resolutions were adopted, the most important being the first, favoring the repeal of the so-called "Cigar" rates and the restoration of the old rates without change. If a higher schedule is deemed advisable, there shall be a level raise applied as of age entry and that one class be maintained in the society.

The metal trades ordinarily put on additional forces in the spring, but during April fewer men were employed in these trades than in March.

A good many shops have laid off men, and the employment trade was dropped about 50 per cent. Only about one-fourth of the calls for help in the metal and machinery trades that were registered last year in April were made this year. The working trades are almost in a similar condition, and the slackness in these trades is reflected also in the smaller demand for help in hotels and restaurants and in wholesale and retail establishments.

The newest elopement trick was recently worked in Switzerland, where the parents of the couple went on a trip to the top of a mountain. While they were there the couple got a bobbed, coasted down the mountainside and were away on an express before the parents could get down the mountain on the railway.

DEMAND FOR LABOR IS SLACK IN APRIL

Farm Help Proves Only Exception With Much Heavier Demand This Year—Shop Employment Slow.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 7.—Employment conditions are universally quiet all over the state, according to reports received by the industrial commission. There was a slight improvement in April compared with March, but compared with April last year conditions are decidedly worse.

Applications at the state free employment offices were 30 for every 100 jobs last year in April. This year there were 120 for every 100 jobs. Positions secured were 1,934 in April, 1912, and only 1,713 in April, 1914. Women are in greater demand than men. The number of women placed was 555 during the month just closed, compared with 236 a year ago.

Farm Labor Demand.
Factory employment is unusually slow and outside work is a good deal behind last year. The only exception is farm work, by means of an extensive advertising campaign and the assistance of an interpreter the state employment offices have doubled the number of calls for farm help and almost tripled the number of men placed on farms as compared with last year. At April 412 men were referred to farmers for work, and 226 were actually hired. Many of these were foreigners who could not speak English. Demand in the building trade was 27 per cent less than in April last year, and calls for common laborers of all kinds fell off more than half. Last year at this time the railroad companies called for many men for track work. This year practically none of this work is being done, and work on the lake boats is also slow.

Shops Lay Off Men.
The metal trades ordinarily put on additional forces in the spring, but during April fewer men were employed in these trades than in March.

A good many shops have laid off men, and the employment trade was dropped about 50 per cent. Only about one-fourth of the calls for help in the metal and machinery trades that were registered last year in April were made this year. The working trades are almost in a similar condition, and the slackness in these trades is reflected also in the smaller demand for help in hotels and restaurants and in wholesale and retail establishments.

Fortunate Dealings.
In a composition dealing with the habits and customs of American Indians, a boy deeply impressed with their free-and-easy life wrote the following: "The Indians had few laws, but they were well violated."

Shrewd Elopement Trick.
The newest elopement trick was recently worked in Switzerland, where the parents of the couple went on a trip to the top of a mountain. While they were there the couple got a bobbed, coasted down the mountainside and were away on an express before the parents could get down the mountain on the railway.

WIDOW MASON'S COOK

By JOHN DARLING.

Whenever Coline Ascott took a run down to "The Maples," which was her widowed sister's country place, she was privileged to do anything she wanted to. She romped with the dogs, chased the chickens, milked the cow and shoveled snow, if it happened to be winter, and ran the lawnmower if it were summer.

In addition to that, she occasionally drove the cook out of the kitchen and prepared a meal according to the schedule of the cooking school she attended in the city.

On this particular day, at four o'clock in the afternoon, the cook was out, and the sister had gone to the village. Miss Coline was left all alone, and one of the things she contemplated for supper—falsely and deceptively called dinner by a share of the population—was an old-fashioned custard.

First get the eggs. They could be found in the henhouse. Miss Coline walked down the path to the gate to get a view up and down the highway before going after the eggs.

And what she saw as she leaned over the gate was an automobile approaching. Its sole occupant was the young man at the steering wheel. Something was wrong. It hobbled. It limped. It halted.

Opposite the gate and the girl the machine came to a halt.

"The girl and the young man stared at each other.

"Anybody home?" finally asked Hugh Farnham.

"I think you are looking at somebody," replied Miss Coline.

"Pretty smart for a maid," he smiled.

"The cook, thank you!" was retorted.

"Well, my trouble is that this auto is gone lame on me, and I can't find out why."

Miss Coline opened the gate and asked out to the machine, and after a minute said:

"I believe they feed these things gasoline to make them go. No gasoline, no go."

"The deuce!" whispered the young man, as he inspected the empty tanks.

"And now you can fetch a tin of gasoline from the garage to last you a few miles, though you will probably start out without the tires next time."

And with that the girl started off on the hummer and gave him no more attention.

Mr. Farnham had five miles to go to his father's home, and he reached it without further adventure.

"Mother," he said when he reached home, "why don't you fire your fat and rummy old cook and get something different?"

"For what reason?"

"Because she isn't a dandy. Back a few miles I saw a handsome young lady who was a cook—intelligent, educated and classy! I almost permitted myself to admire her."

"My smart son," said the mother. "I'll bet a dollar to a shilling that you have been fooled. Is she a rather homely?"

"Yes."

"Blue eyes and curly hair?"

"That's it."

"Well, my son, that girl was and is Mrs. Mason's sister. Her home was and is in the city, but she comes down here every few weeks. How does it feel to be taken for a hayseed?"

"I'll get even with her for that!" was the vigorous reply, and the subject was dropped.

Every day for the next two weeks young Farnham was out on the road earning to run his auto, but he never went so far as the white house on the hill. It was only when he thought he had absorbed all there was to learn, including self-confidence, that he sped in that direction. When within half a mile of the house he saw an auto come out of the drive. It contained two ladies only.

"That must be the widow and her sister," he mused. "The one who made a fool of me will be at the wheel. Good! Now to shatter her egotism a bit."

He put on speed and shot ahead. His coming was not noticed until he was passing. One glance told him that the girl who had posed as the cook was driving the machine. With exaggerated politeness he bowed and smiled, and he saw her straighten up and her eyes flash. The road soon narrowed, and there was no chance to pass him, but as he exalted something went wrong with his machine. It swerved into the ditch, knocked down three or four rods of rail fence, and then stopped dead still after vainly trying to climb over an old stump.

Miss Coline had to turn her head and look. It wasn't the thing to do, but most any driver would have done it. Smash! Crash! Her auto was taking the fence on the opposite side!

"This comes of a hired man driving an auto!" she said.

"Or a cook!" he retorted.

"Sir!"

"Miss!"

"What is all this talk about?" demanded Widow Mason, as she advanced.

The other two looked at each other or a few seconds and then began to laugh.

"I have learned since the other day," said Miss Coline, "that you are not a hired man. I therefore beg pardon."

"Granted; and I have also learned since the other day that you are not my family cook. I therefore—"

Mr. Farnham and Miss Ascott are frequently seen riding out together, and their attitude is exactly that of two young persons in love.

FOR THE FLY CAMPAIGN

New Weapons to Facilitate the Swatting Operations.

It will not be long before the gay and festive fly will be with us again, and the indications are that the fly-swatting campaign will be more active than ever before during the coming summer. Several new implements of warfare have been designed to carry on the fight against the fly, which are shown in the accompanying illustrations. One consists of the usual metal gauge, but it is framed in a piece of felt, which has the faculty of protecting the furniture with which it sometimes comes in more or less violent contact. The old style of all-metal swatter, always left its imprint on a highly polished piece of furniture after vanquishing the fly.

The other swatter designs to overcome this feature by swatting the fly on the wing, and with a little ingenuity it will be found to make fly-swatting as exciting as tennis. The new device resembles a tennis racket to a remarkable degree, but, instead of a network of strings, as in the case of the racket, or of wire as in the case of the old-fashioned swatter, this has the means for holding a piece of sticky fly paper. With a little experience one can capture the flies as they hover over the dinner table. There can never be any ground for disputes about the score, for there are the flies themselves clinging to the sticky surface of the weapon to be used as evidence.

Regular Health Exercises.

Men and women of sedentary habit as a rule do not take sufficient exercise, especially in the open, nor do they practice deep breathing, both of which have a direct effect upon the blood and its course through the body. Morning exercises should be taken regularly, including deep breathing. They should also be repeated at noon hour and on going home and again on retiring.

Remarkable Bee Hive.

A beehive of extraordinary dimensions has been removed from the roof of Castlehill, an Ayrshire (Scotland) eighteenth century mansion. The hive has been known to have been on the roof for 50 years. Its accumulated weight was endangering the structure. Myriads of bees were killed to enable the workmen to remove the slates. The honey store was in perfect preservation, and about half a ton was removed.

Light From the Earth.

The darkest part of the sky is always aglow. The earth itself gives off a lot of light. Scientists of the Franklin Institute have measured the earth light and have found that it is of the order of one-tenth part of the intensity of a star of the first order of magnitude. It is attributed, at least partially, to a permanent aurora borealis which is revealed by the characteristic green ray observed on obscure nights in the whole heavens.

TAPELINE ON RIBBON SPOOL

A Convenient Scheme for Measuring Patented by a Southern Woman.
There will be no use for yardsticks at the ribbon counter when the scheme patented by a North Carolina woman comes into general use. Also there will be but few soiled and mangled ribbon ends to throw into the bargain sale, for the reason that this invention takes such good care of the ends that there is little opportunity for their becoming soiled. With the ribbon and the length of paper which invariably accompanies it as a means of protection, there is also rolled a thin paper tape marked with the feet and inches, ready for use in measuring ribbon lengths. Another feature in the holder, the construction of which is clearly shown in the cut, by which the ribbon is always maintained in its place on the spool, preventing the ends from becoming mislaid or soiled by reason of undue exposure as a result of becoming partially separated from the spool. When it is desired to detach a piece of the ribbon it is rolled off with the tape, by means of which the length may be determined with accuracy. When the ribbon is cut off there is a wire guard to hold the end in place and the tape is ready to measure the next length.

EDUCATION IS NEED OF MEXICAN PEOPLE

Young Mexican Student at Madison
Discusses Conditions in Homeland—Sees Huerta's Doom.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 7.—"What the Mexican people need is more education," said Jose E. Zapata, a Mexican student here attending the university, taking a course in agriculture. "The people need a strong centralized government much like that maintained by Diaz, but one that does not rest on the army."

Although he comes from Mexico City, where his father is a wealthy mining engineer, Jose E. Zapata disclaims any blood relationship with the famous southern rebel of Mexico, who is now threatening an attack on Huerta at Mexico City.

No Relative of Bandit.
"I am no relative to the Zapata who is operating in southern Mexico," said Zapata, the student. "That man is a bandit and is not in sympathy with the people of Mexico who want to have conditions improve. I think Huerta will be deposed and that some man unmentioned now will be elected as president. I don't believe there is a single military man in Mexico who has been mentioned in connection with the presidency, who could weld the Mexican people together. The country needs a strong man, one who will give the people peace, order, and taxation laws that will be equitable. Now the poor are taxed and the rich escape. The war has been a terrible burden on the people of Mexico. My father writes that his taxes have doubled in the last year as the result of the war. My plans for the future have been disrupted by the war. I wanted to go back and start a better system of agriculture among my people. This will be impossible if the present conditions continue."

Zapata was asked what he thought of President Wilson's Mexican policy.
"The American government cannot be criticised by right thinking Mexicans," said Zapata. "The president and the country have been very patient in dealing with Huerta. Many of the stories that are published about the conduct of the Mexicans of the north in dealing with Americans I do not believe are true. I know the people of the north. They love the Americans. I think it is true that the large financial interests of Americans have much to do with the war."

FEARS ASSASSIN; WON'T COME TO U. S.

King Alfonso.

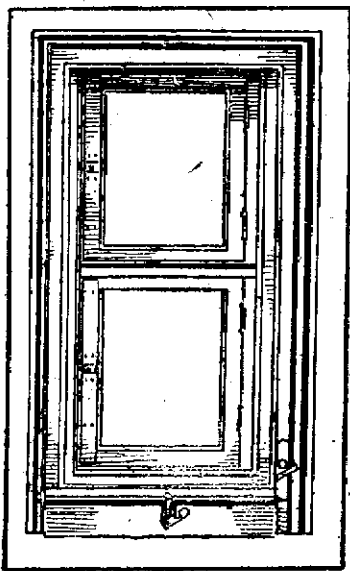

King Alfonso of Spain has just announced that he will not play on the Spanish polo team which will come to America to participate in the international polo tournament at San Francisco in 1915. The reason given is that his ministers fear that he will be assassinated.

Knew Something About That.
"What does the poet say 'a sorrow's crown of sorrow' is?" mused the thoughtful man. "I don't know what the poet says," replied the one who had had experience, "but I think it's the aching crown a fellow has on the morning after he's tried to drown his sorrow."

IMPROVEMENT IN SASHES

Both Frames Locked at Any Point
by a Single Button at the Side.

The accompanying cut shows a new idea in the construction of window frames which has been recently invented and patented by a Philadelphia inventor. The object of the invention being to provide improved mounting for window sashes, and an improved sash pocket into which both of the sashes are adapted to be moved and automatically covered or partially covered by a spring-pressed sash pocket cover which constitutes a water shed to protect the pocket and bear against the lower sash when the sashes are in normal closed position.

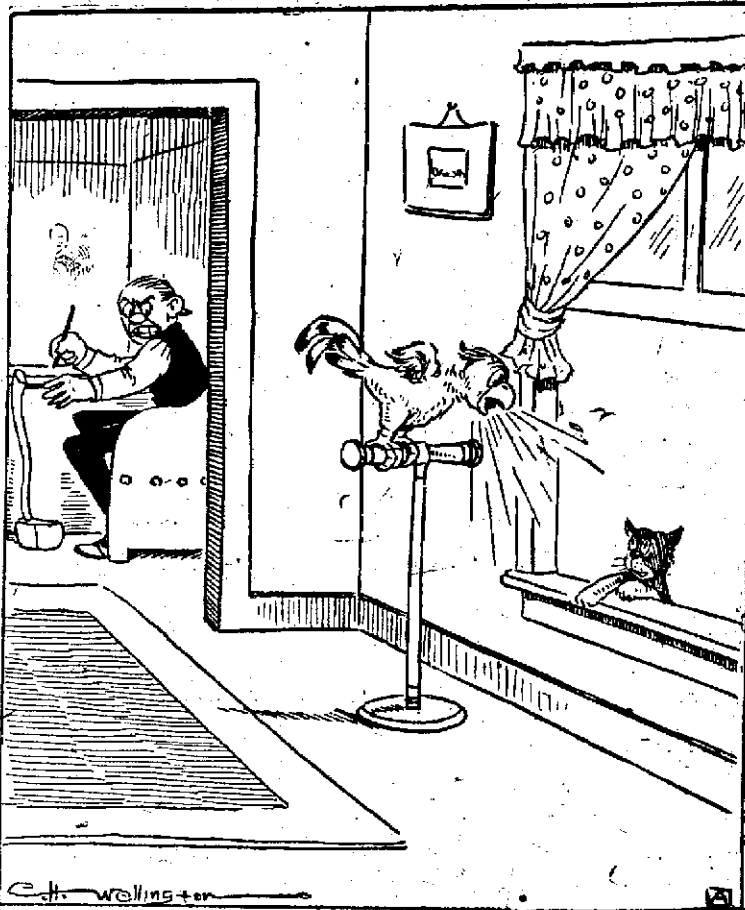

LOCKED BY THE BUTTON AT THE SIDE.

A further object is to provide an improved construction of window frame in which improved sashes are mounted to slide balanced by weights in the weight boxes of the sash and locked at various positions of vertical adjustment, so that the sashes may be locked either in closed or partially open position. This locking of the sashes is accomplished by the manipulation of the button seen at the side of the frame.

Queerest Word in Language.

Pocket-handkerchief is the queerest word in the language. At first it was kerchief (couvre-chef), a covering for the head; then it became handkerchief, a covering for the head carried in the hand, and at last pocket-handkerchief, a covering for the head held in the hand and kept in the pocket.

Odd-Looking Shark's Egg.

A shark's egg is one of the oddest looking things imaginable. It is unprovided with shell, but the contents are protected by a thick, leathery covering, almost as elastic as India rubber. The average size is 2 by 2 1/2 inches, and it is almost jet black.

RUSSIA PREPARES FOR ARMY MOBILIZATION; LAY MARINE EMBARGO.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
St. Petersburg, May 7.—Diplomatic circles are considerably exercised over a new order just issued by the Council of Ministers, which authorizes the War Minister to lay an embargo on any vessel or vessels of the Russian mercantile marine needed for transportation of war stores and troops fourteen days before formal mobilization orders are issued.
The order provides that on the embargo no member of the crew of the vessel affected may leave the ship, and the clerical staff in the shipowner's office must also remain at their posts, all being placed under military law. It is pointed out that under the new law Russia could secretly have everything ready for war a fortnight before a general mobilization order was issued.

SUPERSTITIOUS INDIANS BURY MONTH OLD CHILD

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Calcutta, May 7.—An extraordinary case of superstition was disclosed by the arrest of three men who were caught in the act of burying alive a baby a month old. The baby was born with a tooth, and a few days afterwards six sucking pigs and a calf died in the neighborhood. Thereupon, a soot-sayer declared that the child had a devil, and undertook to exorcise it, but on the following night the father became ill. He then decided that the devil had been too strong for the soot-sayer, and that he must get rid of the child to escape its malignity.

First English Concertina.

The first English concertina was made in 1829, but there was a German concertina long before that time. Mozart (who seems to have written for every instrument in existence in his day, including barrel organs, mechanical clockwork, etc.) wrote an adagio in C major 2 1/2 times for the concertina in the year 1779, and also an adagio and rondo for concertina, flute, oboe, viola, and 'cello in 1790 or 1791.

Lucky Accident for Him.

After proposing three times and being rejected on account of his ugliness, a man in London was injured in an accident so severely that when he recovered his face had been completely reconstructed; decidedly for the better. He proposed again and was accepted.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

THE AUTOMOBILE MOUTH.

AS I sat in a trolley car the other day I looked out the window and saw an automobilist who had been held up by some passengers alighting from the car.

And how I did wish I had a camera that I might get a picture of that man's mouth! It was so tightly compressed, so nervous, so painfully tense. Although a word could not have escaped those tight shut lips, he must have been in a state of mind of that kind.

With the possible exception of the telephone, the automobile is the greatest invention of the age. It has done more to revolutionize social life and business conditions than any other invention.

The perfecting of inexpensive cars, thus bringing the automobile within the reach of people of limited incomes, as well as of the wealthy, has been a great blessing.

Every week and every day automobiles get a lot of fresh air into the systems of people who need it badly and who would not have exerted themselves to get out doors if they had not had a machine.

The automobile widens the circle of our friends since it becomes possible to spend an evening with a friend ten or fifteen miles away, and not have your pleasure overshadowed by the thought of the coming hour on the trolley with its two or three changes and tedious waits.

And now that I've given the automobile honor due, I'm sure even its most ardent lovers will forgive me if I say it also does harm.

For the expression which I noticed on the face of a man outside the trolley car is symbolic of the state of mind that the possession of an automobile seems to create in some people. They must be going at top speed every moment. Not are they willing to leave it to the gasoline to run the machine. They must help with their minds. They must push it with their own vital force which they had much better save for other purposes.

If they find themselves held down to a reasonable pace by a car ahead of them, they are impatient. Instead of speed, they are restless and dissatisfied until they can get past him. Often they take foolish chances to accomplish this.

When they are actually held up for a moment, the vibrations of the machine waiting to leap ahead seem to communicate themselves to their nerves.

I've seen hundreds of these automobile mouths and I always think there's a poor man (or woman) getting harm instead of good out of his machine.

Anything which possesses you instead of being possessed by you, be it a house, a business, an ambition or an automobile, is harmful.

Look in the mirror, automobile owners, and see if you are developing an automobile mouth.

Do you own your own machine, or does it own you?

ness the marriage. Nearly all of them will wear gowns not seen here before this season, and taffetas in light shades, with cream and white laces, have been the more generally chosen materials.

Mrs. Marshall, wife of the vice-president, selected a costume of white net and lace, made in the prevailing ruffled style, the skirt partly draped, with broad embroidered flounces of net, and narrower ones with lace edges. The bodice has the lace and net in a soft kimono blouse effect.

Mrs. Bryan, wife of the secretary of state, will wear a very modish gown of tulle, which has a large flowered pattern of roses in deep shades all over it. The draped skirt shows a petticoat in front of embroidered rose chiffon. The bodice is also inserted in the softly draped waist, but a line of nearly white and very fine lace edged the V-shaped neck opening. Mrs. Bryan selected one of the small toques to wear with this dress—a becoming model in black tulle and jet.

Mrs. Houston, wife of the secretary of agriculture, will wear white—a very pretty model in lace, with touches of jet and made-over white. The sash and girdle are of gold satin.

Mrs. Lane, wife of the secretary of the interior, has chosen from among her new frocks a stylish but simply made one of black flowered tulle, over lavender chiffon. Both these gauzy materials form the bodice, with ivory-tinted lace around the V-shaped opening at the neck.

Mrs. Daniels, wife of the secretary of the navy, has chosen a becoming dress of pansy colored charmeuse with over draperies of blue chiffon, which is embroidered in pinstripes. The purple straw hat she is to wear with it is wreathed with pansies.

Women Worth While

MRS. WILLIAM E. HUMPHREY.

By Selene Armstrong Harmon.

The woman who is clever at golf, knows two swimming strokes and rides horseback, usually prides herself on being athletic. Mrs. William E. Humphrey, wife of Representative Humphrey of Seattle, Washington, has never found time to go in for athletics under skilled teachers and trainers after the manner of the city bred woman. She has been too busy with her husband's work.

Representative Humphrey has been in the Tanana mountains in Mexico, or hunting big game with her husband on the snowfields of Alaska. She has never had the sleeping porch laid, but she has often found a night's sleep in the midst of the desert, with stars for sentinels, and tramping, rattles, and a few other wild things for neighbors.

"Naturally," says Mrs. Humphrey, "I take great interest in the things that interest my husband, so why should I not accompany him in his travels and on his hunting trips. How do I dress for these expeditions? Why, as soon as we get beyond the pale of civilization I discard woman's clothing for a man's suit, a good stout pair of boots, and a pair of overalls. To this costume I make what you may consider the laughable and inconspicuous addition of a woman's old-fashioned sunbonnet on the snowfields of Alaska, because it protected my eyes from the glare of the sun on the snow more satisfactorily than anything else I had tried. My garb never excited either amusement or interest among our guides, or among the few men who went on the plains.

Their womenfolk were evidently accustomed to attach little or no importance to frills and furbelows. It is remarkable, anyhow, what insignificant proportions the subject of dress assumes when we are face to face with elemental things."

Mrs. Humphrey spent sixty days with her husband in the northern part of Alaska far from even the most remote of trading posts. On this expedition, with her Indian guide, Moose, she penetrated into frigid regions where no white woman has ever set foot. At one time Mr. Humphrey and this faithful guide held up the camp for four days while the rest of the party were in search of game.

"I fear you will be horribly disappointed," Mrs. Humphrey says, "when I confess to never having killed a single bear, or other big game, and that which I enjoyed most of all in Alaska was the picking of those hardy and exquisite wild flowers that bloom in a setting snow."

Representative Humphrey, however, has a number of the skins of Arctic bears which he killed on the trip.

Mrs. Humphrey is one of the charter members of the Congressional club at the capital, and helped to organize it. She also finds time to fulfill the duties of director in the Washington Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, besides keeping up an active membership in several philanthropic organizations in Seattle. Outside her home duties, however, she is more interested in child welfare work than in any other branch of reform.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) If a same and have not the fascination of natural dimples that come and go as one takes and laughs. You wouldn't make up first; and what should I say or what should he say? (2) I love a boy very dearly and think that he loves me as though I can't like any other boy. Please advise me. (3) Is it any harm for a boy to take a girl to a picture show? I am 15 years old. (4) How old should a girl be before she goes with fellows? A. C. D.

He was one of those men, moreover, who possess almost every gift except the gift of the power to use them.—Kingsley.

Thought for the Day.

(1) It depends upon the cause of the quarrel. If the girl is in the wrong she should own up and ask the boy to be friends again. If he was in the wrong, he should apologize, of course. At the same time, unless he was insulting in some way, the girl should not hold a grudge.

(2) You'll get over it, dearie. Girls of your age always do.

(3) If he takes her in the afternoon and her parents know all about it and are willing, I do not see what harm can come from it.

(4) A girl ought to be seventeen or eighteen at least before she allows herself to think of boys as beaux. You must all the boys as your now, my dear, and don't allow any "calf love."

Dear Mrs. Thompson: Please give recipe for roll chocolate cake with marshmallow filling.

THANK YOU.

For the cake take three eggs, one cup sugar, two teaspoons baking powder, one cup flour, two squares butter, one cup milk, one square baker's chocolate. Bake in thin layer in long flat pan. Have clean white cloth or table turn hot cake out on this, spread with filling and roll with aid of the cloth. Cake must be hot to roll.

Marshmallow Filling: Melt half pound marshmallows with one-quarter cup water, in double boiler. Beat two egg whites until very stiff, then gradually pour over them the melted marshmallows, beating all the time. When cake is rolled out away in cool place to harden filling.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: We are two chums of sixteen.

(1) I have no red cheeks and I am healthy. What will make them red? When I am in the heat they get red, but when I am out in the air the redness goes away. Do you know why this is?

(2) Do you think we ought to wear our hair down our back?

INQUIRITIVE SIXTEENS.

(1) Plaid skirts will be worn this summer, but they will be of silk or some light weight fabric.

(2) It is not unusual for some girls to be healthy and still not have red cheeks. Possibly you may need a little more iron in your blood. Ask your doctor if this is so. If he agrees, he can give you an iron tonic.

(3) It would look very pretty tied up with ribbons, I am sure.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of eighteen and am employed as a bookkeeper.

(1) About a month ago I met a fellow who was "ginger" over dimples. How can I get them?

(2) A few nights ago this fellow wanted to kiss me and I wouldn't let him. Upon refusing him, he became mad. I love this man dearly. What can I do to win his love again?

(3) Did I do what was right by refusing him?

(4) A dermatologist can make dimples by a surgical operation. Then, dimples, however, always stay the same.

Winter invariably proves a hardship to the human system. The blood becomes clogged with poisonous impurities, the liver grows sluggish and as a result we have sallow, pimply skins, a loss of energy and appetite, and suddenly find ourselves all tired out and sick.

"The surest and best remedy for this condition is a tablespoonful of the following home-made tonic before meals: In 1/2 pint alcohol dissolve 1/2 cup sugar and one ounce karoene, adding hot water to make a quart. This old-fashioned remedy is unequalled for making the blood pure and giving the body tissues strength and energy. It is a remedy so good as to be almost indispensable for family use in restoring health and energy to both old and young. Advertise merit."

I went to hear an orchestra concert last night, and I saw a fellow who was a drum player. They say that the drum player don't get any more money than the bass drum player, as the drum player loses half the time.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

When washing black stockings add a little vinegar to the rinsing water. It keeps the stockings in good color.

Whenever you have occasion to stand a vase of flowers on a highly polished table, always place a piece of blotting paper under the centerpiece. The paper absorbs all the moisture or water that may come from the vase.

Steel articles should be dusted, and once a week polished alternately with fine emery paper and emery powder with oil of paraffin.

A delicious icing is made with one and one-half pounds of icing sugar, three whites of eggs and the juice of a lemon. Blend and beat hard for half an hour.

THE TABLE.

Cannelloni of Beef—Two pounds of lean beef, from round, grated fine, one-half lemon, one tablespoonful of finely chopped parsley, one egg, one-half teaspoonful of onion juice, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, few grains of nutmeg, and a dash of salt. One-quarter teaspoonful of pepper. Chop the meat finely and add the remaining ingredients in the order given. Shape in a roll six inches long, wrap in butter paper, place on a rack in a dripping pan and bake thirty minutes. Baste every five minutes

STANLEY HORWOOD WINNER IN ORATORY

SECOND PLACE GOES TO WILLIAM LATHROP IN EVENT HELD LAST EVENING.

JOSEPHINE REED WINS

First in Declamations, With Ruth Doherty Second.—Judging Was Extremely Close.

Very nearly six hundred enthusiastic students, parents and friends of the eight speakers from Beloit and Janesville entered in the oratorical and declamatory events, held last evening in the auditorium of the Janesville high school, composed the large audience that listened to two of the closest judged contests held for some time in this city, in which Stanley Horwood, from the Iron school, captured first place in the oratorical event, and Josephine Reed of Beloit winning the declamatory contest. William Lathrop of Beloit won second and Allen Dearborn of Janesville third places in the oratorical event, while Ruth Doherty and Evelyn Welsh won second and third places respectively in the declamatory contests.

Stanley Horwood and Josephine Reed, by winning last evening, will be entered in the district contest, to be held in Whitewater Saturday evening, May 16th. The winners in the district events will then be entered in the state meets, to be held later in the month.

The high school orchestra played last evening and rendered many worthy selections. Following the opening medley, T. J. Sheafar, who was chairman of the evening, announced Miss Laura Matheson of Beloit as the first speaker in the declamatory contest. Miss Matheson rendered "The Mustard Plantain" as her selection, and presented it in a very capable manner. Her delivery was good, and lack of experience was all that kept her from landing a place.

Miss Ruth Doherty was second speaker, with "A Christmas Experience." She wore a sympathetic smile and cleverly impersonated the small youth in her lines. Her cool way of characterizing the persons involved within the selection aided her greatly in winning second place.

"For His Mother's Sake," given by Miss Evelyn Welsh, was the most difficult selection of the entire set of declamations. Miss Welsh was forced to use a harsh voice throughout the reading, and her wonderful impersonating talent was definitely shown. Her voice last night was the best of the four speakers, and students were confident that the contest would lie between the Misses Welsh and Reed for first and second place.

Josephine Reed rendered the selection with which she won the contest and medal at Beloit some weeks ago. "Mary Alice Smith" was the name of the reading, and Miss Reed told it in a dramatic way that won the favor of the audience. She wore a very favorable impression with his audience. He wears knee pants, and is only a sophomore in the line City school. He handled the selection very carefully and was exceptionally good on art.

Stanley Horwood followed with the famous "Patrick Henry Speech," and his delivery, over previous appearances was strengthened by fifty per cent. Mr. Horwood has a powerful voice, and he cool but forceful expression that he used, caught the judges, in pronouncing him winner. He will speak in the district contest at Whitewater Saturday, May 16th. Students believe he stands as a very excellent show to win at Whitewater, and go into the state meet for further honors.

Allen Dearborn was third speaker. He delivered his selection, "Mark Twain," when the decision was rendered, the audience were somewhat surprised not to hear Dearborn's name in either first or second place. He spoke with his usual good voice, full of expression and with vivacity.

The fourth and last speaker for the evening was William Lathrop, who delivered with deliberation, "The March of the Flag." He took his time, and thoroughly impressed the judges. He was marked close to Horwood, but the latter's powerful voice and earnestness in handling his lines, are what spelled Lathrop's defeat.

FUNDS ARE RAISED FOR CORN CONTEST

Commercial Club's Committee Meets Ready Response From Janesville Merchants.

Funds sufficient for financing the corn contest which will be conducted this season for Rock county farmer boys was raised at a meeting of the Janesville Commercial club, held Wednesday evening. The committee in charge of the contest, which is headed by F. H. Jackson, is chairman. The solicitors for the club were greeted with a ready response by the Janesville merchants and business men who realize the value of the undertaking and who promised hearty support in every way possible. A ready response was given by the Janesville merchants and business men who realize the value of the undertaking and who promised hearty support in every way possible. A ready response was given by the Janesville merchants and business men who realize the value of the undertaking and who promised hearty support in every way possible.

Before I proceed, let me brush aside the many prejudices with which this question is covered so that we may get at the real truth. The first prejudice which I encountered around $48 is that the plant is rotten and not worth the money we are to pay for it. Now, it appears to me that if this really was the fact the corporation would gladly accept the advance to sell out and not go into an expensive thousands of dollars fighting its sale. I am yet to hear of a corporation that has to be thrown and bound to make it accept a given thing.

The second prejudice carefully laid to fool the people is that it will increase the taxes of the property owners. This statement is not only wrong but actually foolish. Has anybody ever heard of a city going over a revenue producing public utility and paying for it by a property tax? Why should a man be taxed for water when he could not use it if he wanted to? The main reason blocks away from his house. No court in the land would permit it. Both these statements are put forth in my opinion by interested persons to serve a purpose, and this purpose is to scare the people into voting against the purchase. Scarecrows may fool the birds, but men know that they protect the fruit.

If taken over, the city will pay for the plant out of the earnings of the plant. Let me show how. I have before me the annual report of the Janesville Water Company which shows for 1913, the gross receipts, $106,577.15, and expenses amounting to $29,518.15. In this, however, is included an item of $8,412.50 as interest on bonds, and as the bonds are held by the owners of the plant, it is also a profit and should be placed. The net expenses, therefore, including an item of $5,400 for salaries to officers and officers, which would be eliminated under city ownership, is just $21,105.65. When this is now deducted from the gross earnings we find that the amount of juicy fruit which these $25,000 are protecting is the net sum of $25,000.22 for the year.

Is it any wonder then that the company is fighting the purchase of its plant so hard?

Let me now show how the people of Janesville can pay for the plant in a few years' time and not use a solitary penny of their money. In fact, I want to show how we can make the company pay it off for us. We will take the money that the owners now pocket in the share of profits and enter that upon the city's books as part payment on account.

The value set upon the plant by the railroad commission is $226,700. The city will issue bonds to cover this amount and pay, say, 4 1/2 per cent per year interest. This will amount to $10,201.50. Adding this amount to the actual net operating cost, when stripped of all items that would not occur under city ownership, of $12,901.73, we get the sum of $23,103.23. Now we take this sum and deduct it from the gross earnings and we will have left over as clear profit the goodly amount of $23,005.54. This, mind you, is over and above all running expenses and aside from interest on the bonds and would go into a sinking fund which in ten years' time will grow into the huge sum of $230,000, and with accrued interest, enough to pay off every dollar of obligation that the people assume should they so decide next Tuesday.

Now, I said I would show that we can make the company do the paying for us, and I am going to make good. This is the way we will do that. If we don't buy the plant, this large sum will go into the pockets of the company in the course of the next ten years anyway, and so if we decide to buy we will take charge of that money and at the end of that time hand it to them and get their receipt in full. Isn't this plain? So why should we talk of increased taxes and enormous obligations. Such talk will only subject one to ridicule.

Now, there are a number of other objections befouling the real question, but as I have already consumed too much of your space, I will leave their consideration over to your next issue.

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa. — "When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown state of health, had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. FRANK CLARK, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Pa.

Women Have Been Telling Women for forty years how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It will pay you to do so. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

POURING OUT THE WHISKEY

Life's Hopes and Its Opportunities Run Out With the Poison That Men Drink.

On the sloppy surface of any bar you might read spelled out the word—HOPE. Carefully and neatly the bartender with his towel wipes off the bar every minute or two—as he looks at you and your drinking. He is cheerful and pleasant always. He doesn't tell you what he KNOWS. When your hand shakes, and a little of the whiskey is spilled, he smiles, says it is all right, and wipes it off. He has simply wiped off a little spilled whiskey. You have wiped out a little of your remaining hope of success. You can't take hold of that bottle and be as good a man as you were before. Whiskey is a poison and the whiskey drinker poisons himself. Worse than that he poisons his family. He drowns with his own hope, the hope of his wife, his children, his mother, all of those that have a right to depend upon him. From an Editorial in Chicago American.

The Real Treatment for the Drink Habit removes all craving, appetite or desire for liquor and makes a new man of the drinker. Then why continue drinking? There are no painful or dangerous hypodermic injections used in connection with the Real Treatment. No bad after effects. Only a few days required. THE PLACE OF HONEY-MOONS HAROLD MACGRATH Pictures by C.D. RHODES she murmured, striving to loosen the bars with her small, white, helpless hands. The cry seemed to be an aria, for through all these four mad-dening days she had voiced it—now low and deadly with hate, now full-toned in burning anger, now broken by sobs of despair. "Will you never come, so that I may tell you how base and vile you are?" she further addressed the east.

"Oh, but He Shall Pay, He Shall Pay."

She had waited for his appearance on Sunday. Late in the day one of the jailers had informed her that it was impossible for the gentleman to come before Monday. So she marshaled her army of phrases, of accusations, of denunciations, ready to smother him with them the moment he came. But he came not Monday, nor Tuesday, nor Wednesday. The suspense was to her mind diabolical. She began to understand; he intended to keep her there till he was sure that her spirit was broken, then he would come. Break her spirit? She laughed wildly. He could break her spirit no more easily than she could break these bars. To bring her to Versailles upon an errand of mercy! Well, he was capable of anything.

She was not particularly distressed because she knew that it would not be possible for her to sing again until the following winter in New York. She had sobbed too much, with her face buried in the pillow. Had these sobs been born of weakness, all might have been well; but rage had mothered them, and thus her voice was in a very bad way. This morning she was noticeably hoarse, and there was a break in the aria. No, she did not fret over this side of the calamity. The sting of it all lay in the fact that she had been outraged in the matter of personal liberty, with no act of reprisal to ease her immediate longing to be avenged.

Nora, as she stood in the full morning sunlight, was like to gladden the eyes of all mankind. She was beautiful, and all adjectives applicable would but serve to confuse rather than to embellish her physical excellence. She was as beautiful as a garden rose in needing no defense, no ramparts of cloying phrases. The day of poets is gone, otherwise she would have been sung in cantos. She was tall, shapely, deep-bosomed, fine-skinned. Critics, in praising her charms, delved into mythology and folk-tales for comparisons, until there wasn't a goddess left on Olympus or on Northland's icy capes; and when these images became a little shop-worn, referred to certain masterpieces of the old fellows who had left nothing more to be said in oils. Nora enjoyed it all.

She had not been happy in the selection of her stage name; but she had chosen Eleonora da Toscana because she believed there was good luck in it. Once, long before the world knew of her, she had returned home from Italy unexpectedly. "Molly, here's Nora, from Tuscany!" her delighted father had cried; who at that time had a nebulous idea that Tuscany was somewhere in Ireland because it had a Celtic ring to it. Being filled with love of Italy, its tongue, its history, its physical beauty, she naively translated "Nora from Tuscany" into Italian, and declared that when she went upon the stage she would be known by that name. There had been some smiling aver the pseudonym; but Nora was Irish enough to cling to it. By and by the great music-loving public ceased to concern itself about her name; it was her fresh beauty and her wonderful voice they craved to see and hear. Kings and queens, emperors and empresses, princes and princesses—what is called royalty and nobility in the newspapers freely gave her homage. Quite a rise in the world for a little girl who had once lived in a shabby apartment in New York and run barefooted on the wet asphalt, summer nights!

"But Nora" was not recalling the happy scenes of her childhood; indeed, no; she was still threatening Paris. Once there, she would not lack for reprisals. To have played on her pity! To have made a lure of her tender concern for the unfortunate! Never would she forgive such baseness. And only a little while ago she had been as happy as the nightingale to which they compared her. Never had she wronged anyone; she had been kindness and thoughtfulness to all with whom she had come in contact. But from now on! . . . Her fingers tightened round the bars. She might have posed as Dido when she learned that the noble Aeneas was dead. War, war; woe to the moths who fluttered about her head hereafter!

Ah, but had she been happy? Her hands slid down the bars. Her expression changed. The mouth drooped, the eyelight in her eyes dimmed. From out the bright morning, somewhere, had come weariness, and with this came weakness, and finally, tears. She heard the key turn in the lock. They had never come so early before. She was astonished to see that her jailer did not close the door as usual. He put down the breakfast tray on the table. There was tea and toast and fruit.

"Mademoiselle, there has been a terrible mistake," said the man humbly. "Ah! So you have found that out?" she cried.

"Yes. You are not the person for whom this room was intended." Which was half a truth and perfectly true, paradoxical as it may seem. "Eat your breakfast in peace. You are free, mademoiselle."

"Free? You will not hinder me if I walk through that door?"

"No, mademoiselle. On the contrary, I shall be very glad, and so will my brother, who guards you at night. I repeat, there has been a frightful mistake. Monsieur Champeaux?"

"Monsieur Champeaux?" Nora was bewildered. She had never heard this name before.

"He calls himself that," was the diplomatic answer.

All Nora's suspicions took firm ground again. "Will you describe this Monsieur Champeaux to me?" asked the actress coming into life.

"He is short, dark, and old, mademoiselle." "Rather is he not tall, blond and young?" ironically. The jailer concealed what annoyance he felt. In his way he was just as capable an actor as she was. The accuracy of her description startled him; for the affair had been carried out so adroitly that he had been positive that until her real captor appeared she would be totally in the paws of the jailer. And here she had hit it off in less than a dozen words. Oh, well; it did not matter now. She might try to make it unpleasant for his employer, but he doubted the ultimate success of her attempt. However, the matter was at an end as far as he was concerned.

committed, punishable by long imprisonment."

"I have been mademoiselle's jailer, not her abductor. And when one is poor and in need of money!" He shrugged.

"I will give you a thousand francs for the name and address of the man who instigated this outrage."

Ah, he thought; then she wasn't so sure? "I told you the name, mademoiselle. As for his address, I dare not give it, not for ten thousand francs. Besides, I have said that there has been a mistake."

"Have You Thought What This Means? It is Abduction!"

"For whom have I been mistaken?"

"Who but Monsieur Champeaux's wife, mademoiselle, who is not in her right mind?" with inimitable sadness.

"Very well," said Nora. "You say that I am free. That is all I want, freedom."

"In twenty minutes the electric tram leaves for Paris. You will recall, mademoiselle," humbly, "that we have taken nothing belonging to you. You have your purse and hat and cloak. The struggle was most unfortunate. But, think, mademoiselle, think; we thought you to be insane!"

"Permit me to doubt that! And you are not afraid to let me go?"

"Not in the least, mademoiselle. A mistake has been made, and in telling you to go at once, we do our best to rectify this mistake. It is only five minutes to the tram. A carriage is at the door. Will mademoiselle be pleased to remember that we have treated her with the utmost courtesy?"

"I shall remember everything," ominously.

"Very good, mademoiselle. You will be in Paris before nine." With this he bowed and backed out of the room as though Nora had suddenly made a distinct ascension in the scale of importance.

"I shall remember everything," ominously. "Very good, mademoiselle. You will be in Paris before nine." With this he bowed and backed out of the room as though Nora had suddenly made a distinct ascension in the scale of importance.

"Wait!" she called.

His face appeared in the doorway again.

"Do you know who I am?"

"Since this morning, mademoiselle. That is all."

Free! Her veins tingled with strange exultation. He had lost his courage and had become afraid of the consequences. Free! Monsieur Cham-peaux indeed! Cowardice was a new development in his character. He had been afraid to come. She drank the tea, but did not touch the toast or fruit. There would be time enough for breakfast when she arrived in Paris. Her hands trembled violently as she planned on her hat, and she was not greatly concerned as to the angle. She snatched up her purse and cloak, and sped out into the street. A phantom awaited her.

"The tram," she said.

"Yes, mademoiselle."

"And go quickly." She would not feel safe until she was in the tram.

A face appeared at one of the windows. As the vehicle turned the corner, the face vanished; and perhaps that particular visage disappeared forever. A gray wig came off, the little gray side whiskers, the bushy gray eyebrows, revealing a clever face, not more than thirty, cunning, but humorously cunning and anything but secondarily. The painted scar a la la hase was also obliterated. With haste the man thrust the evidences of disguise into a traveling bag, ran here and there through the rooms, all bare and unfurnished save the one with the bars and the kitchen, which contained two coats and some cooking utensils. Nothing of importance had been left behind. He locked the door and ran all the way to the Place d'Armes, catching the tram to Paris by a fraction of a minute.

All very well done. She would be in Paris before the police made any definite move. The one thing that disturbed him was the thought of the blockhead of a chauffeur, who had got drunk before his return from Versailles. If he talked, well, he could say nothing beyond the fact that he had deposited the singer at the house as directed. He knew positively nothing.

The man laughed softly. A thousand francs apiece for him and Antoine, and no possible chance of being discovered. Let the police find the house in Versailles; let them trace whatever paths they found; the agent would tell them, and honestly, that an aged man had rented the house for a month and had paid him in advance. What more could the agent say? Only one bit of puzzlement: why hadn't the blond stranger appeared? Who was he, in truth, and what had been his game? All this waiting and wondering, and then a curt telegram of the night before, saying, "Release her." So much the better. What his employer's motives were did not interest him half so much as the fact that he had a thousand francs in his pocket, and that all element of danger had been done away with. True, the singer herself would move heaven and earth to find out who had been back of the abduction. Let her make her accusations. He was out of it.

"Mademoiselle," said the great policeman soberly, "this is a grave accusation to make."

"I make it, nevertheless," replied Nora. She sat stiffly in her chair, her face colorless, dark circles under her eyes. She never looked toward Courlandt.

"But Monsieur Courlandt has offered an alibi such as we cannot ignore. More than that, his integrity is vouched for by the gentleman at his side, whom doubtless mademoiselle recognizes."

Nora eyed the great man doubtfully.

Dinner Stories

Cy Warner, who deserted railway literature for a real railway job in Montreal told this story at a luncheon of long before his death.

A Scotchman came upon an automobile overturned at a railway crossing. Beside it lay a man all smashed up.

"Get a doctor," he moined.

"Did the train hit you?" asked the Scotchman.

"Yes, yes; get a doctor."

"Has the claim agent been here yet?"

"No, no; please get a doctor." "Move over, you," said the Scot, "till I lie down beside you."

"Somehow," said the genial station official as he seated himself beside the traveler, "there are some things which lead people to appreciate our wonderful improvements for their convenience and comfort. Oh, don't worry," laughed the jolly traveler. "There are some things about your line that are always in the public eye."

"I am glad to hear that, sir. And would you mind naming them?" "Cinders, sir—cinders."

During the civil war General Sed-wick had on his staff a very dull lieutenant, who seemed never to be able to do anything without making mistakes. One day a friend asked the general:

"Why do you keep Jones on your staff? He seems a perfect dunce."

"Do you know," replied General Sedwick, "Jones is one of the most useful members of my staff. Before I issue an order I always have Jones read it. If he can tell what it means I am sure there can be no chance that anyone will misunderstand it."
